SAFEGUARDING CANADA'S FAMILY OF HERITAGE TREASURES

The idea of a Canada-wide system of protected areas took root in the Rockies more than a century ago. Today, national parks protect significant landscapes that represent Canada's vastness and diversity. National historic sites commemorate Canada's evolution as a country, past and present. Together, they are a family of special places which symbolize the important link between stewardship of the land and respect for our human heritage.

Parks Canada is proud of its leadership role in preserving and presenting Canada's natural and cultural resources. National parks and national historic sites offer world-class heritage experiences.

You can do your part—by respecting the land and celebrating our traditions. It's up to all of us to make sure our parks, our waterways, and our past will always have a future.

WELCOME

More than just wide open spaces, Saskatchewan has treasures of all kinds. Your imagination will be your guide as you experience Saskatchewan's national parks and historic sites. A haven for a number of endangered flora and fauna species, Prince Albert National Park and Grasslands National Park offer visitors the opportunity to explore the diverse natural resources of the province. Whether hiking through a boreal forest or investigating the vast southern plains, the national parcs of Saskatchewan offer you a chance to discover and appreciate over a million acres of protected wilderness splendor. Rich in ecological and cultural treasures, Prince Albert and Grasslands provide wonderful opportunities for leisure, recreation and revisiting history. Whether wanting a more rustic experience or all the amenities of home, visiting the national parks allows you to relax and retreat from the everyday.

A land bountiful in resources, Saskatchewan also offers a rich history. Before the first plough ever broke the prairie sod, the frontier was bustling with activity. Aboriginal people, buffalo hunters, whisky traders, mounted police and settlers are only a few of those who impacted the development of the west. Whether exploring the battlefield, the barracks or the barnyard, you can experience the west as it once was. Witness turn of the century farming demonstrations with horses and period equipment. Tour a North West Mounted Police fort or the remains of a Métis village along the South Saskatchewan River. Costumed interpreters will recount the wild ways of the west when rotgut whisky fuelled “Whoop-Up Country”. Whether you are wanting education or entertainment, Saskatchewan’s national parks and national historic sites offer diverse activities and opportunities.

The national parks and historic sites offer interpretive programming all summer long. Whether you prefer guided tours or independent exploration you are in for a treat. Special events offer unique opportunities to participate in authentic activities that will enrich your experience. To ensure that you enjoy your visit to the fullest, when

BATOCHÉ NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

Rapid change accompanied the opening of the west for settlement in the late 1800s. As a result, by 1885, tensions were high in the Métis community of Batoché. Frustrated by lack of government support in addressing issues of encroaching settlement, land surveys and decimated buffalo herds, the Métis were determined to defend their land. Led by Gabriel Dumont and Louis Riel, they clashed with the North West Field Force. The confrontation culminated in the Battle of Batoché. Out-numbered and short of ammunition, the Métis surrendered after four days of fighting. Bullet holes, still

FORT WALSH NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

Misunderstanding about a missing horse resulted in a massacre of Nakoda people near the trading post of Abel Farwell on June 1st, 1873. This massacre hastened the organization and dispatch to western Canada of the North West Mounted Police (NWMP). The force established Fort Walsh in 1875 to enforce the Queen's law and express Canada's sovereignty. Following the arrival of Lakota and Nez Perce refugees after military engagements in the United States, Fort Walsh became NWMP headquarters in 1878. As the great buffalo herds disappeared, Canadian First Nations signed treaties and made the transition to life on reserves. The NWMP abandoned the fort in 1883. In 1942 the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) re-acquired the property for their Remount Ranch. Until 1968 the RCMP's Fort Walsh ranch raised the force's signature black horses for the world famous Musical Ride.

FORT BATTLEFORD NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

Parks Canada / T. Venshine

When Battleford was declared territorial capital in 1876, a police force was required. Agents of government policy, the North West Mounted Police were instrumental in ensuring peaceful settlement, fostering diplomacy, and securing treaty negotiations in the area. By 1885, Fort Battleford boasted the largest police force in the west. During the armed conflict of 1885, Fort Battleford was the base for military operations, and sheltered 500 people who feared for their safety. After the conflict, the fort remained the focal point of police activities in the area and was closed in 1924.

Today you can experience the life of a NWMP officer as you tour the fort, including the furnished Commanding Officer's residence, the officers quarters, and three other original buildings.

MOTHERWELL HOMESTEAD NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

Motherwell Homestead stands as an island amid a sea of wheat, barley, flax and canola. The beautiful stone house speaks silently of its proud heritage, while the enormous barn gives testimony to the self-sufficiency of the early homesteaders.

Visitors can tour the house and barn, which have been restored to the pre-World War I period. Through the living history program, they can observe some of the everyday activities of the time including farm practices with horses and period equipment.

W.R. Motherwell played an important role in the development of the West and agriculture. He served as the first Minister of Agriculture upon the inception of the province of Saskatchewan in 1905 and later as federal Minister of Agriculture. W.R. Motherwell retired in 1939, at the age of 79. He was dubbed the 'Grand Old Man of Canadian Agriculture' and declared an eminent Canadian in 1966.

PRINCE ALBERT NATIONAL PARK

Representative of the transition from aspen parkland to the southern edge of the great boreal forest, the park is a mosaic of large lakes, black spruce-tamarack bogs and white spruce-aspen uplands. The meeting of ecoregions is profoundly reflected in the diverse wildlife and human stories from the area. Rich in cultural history, archaeological evidence suggests that during the harsh winters, peoples of plains culture migrated northward to this area's more sheltered forests and intermingled with the resident forest culture.

Prince Albert National Park protects several unique features of national significance. Lavallée Lake is home to one of the largest white pelican breeding colonies in Canada and the only one afforded full protection by a national park. One third of Canada's remaining original fescue grasslands, part of a once vast prairie ecosystem, is found in pockets in the southwest corner of the park, where bison roam freely.

Getting There

The park is located in central Saskatchewan, where prairie and parkland gradually give way to the lake country of the north. Just a short drive, 80 km north of Prince Albert, the park is accessible by Highways #2/264 and #263(scenic route).

Making the Most of Your Visit

- The park's mood and scenery vary with each season but its tranquil beauty remains unchanged. The operating season for many services and recreation facilities is seasonal, with peak operation from mid-May to September. There are a variety of day use opportunities and to better experience the park, a stay of two to three days is recommended. Enjoy interactive displays, activities and films in the Park Nature Centre, May to September.
- Unravel the mystery of Archie Belaney, a.k.a. Grey Owl, internationally renowned author and orator who lived his last 7 years in the park until his death in 1938. His cabin still stands on the shores of Ajawaan Lake where he, his wife Anahareo and their daughter Shirley Dawn are buried.

Activities

Hiking & Walking. Whether your idea of hiking is an afternoon stroll or an overnight excursion on a backcountry trail, hiking is one of the most popular ways to get to know the park. You have over 150 kms of trails to explore! Join a park interpreter on a guided hike or try one of the four designated self-guiding trails.

Camping. Choices abound from a fully serviced trailer park, electrical to non-electrical sites to rustic unserviced sites. Venture into the remote reaches of the park to one of the many backcountry campsites. Registration is required.

Canoeing & Kayaking. A myriad of lakes and rivers cover the park making the lure of the water almost impossible to resist. Park staff can recommend relaxing day paddles and overnight trips. Rentals are available.

Scenic Touring. Enjoy the variety of scenery while touring on one of the three scenic park roads. Watch for wildlife along the way, stop to climb one of the towers for a panoramic view, or take a break at a day use or beach area.

Birdwatching. Host to more than 230 species, the park is a paradise for bird watchers. Bring your bird field guide and binoculars.

Wildlife Watching. Moose, elk, wolves, red fox, beaver, black bear... the park's protective boundaries harbour a great variety of animals. A drive down a park road or a stroll along a trail at dawn or dusk may prove rewarding.

Cycling. In addition to the trails through and encircling the townsite of Waskesiu Lake, designated trails in the southern areas of the park provide a unique opportunity to experience seldom visited areas of the aspen parkland.

Special Events

- May – ‘Spring Fever’
Nature Centre Opening
- June – National Aboriginal Day
- July – Canada Day,
Waskesiu Children’s
Festival, Parks Day
- August – Heritage Day
- September – Arbor Day

For Your Convenience

Parks Canada / W. Lynch

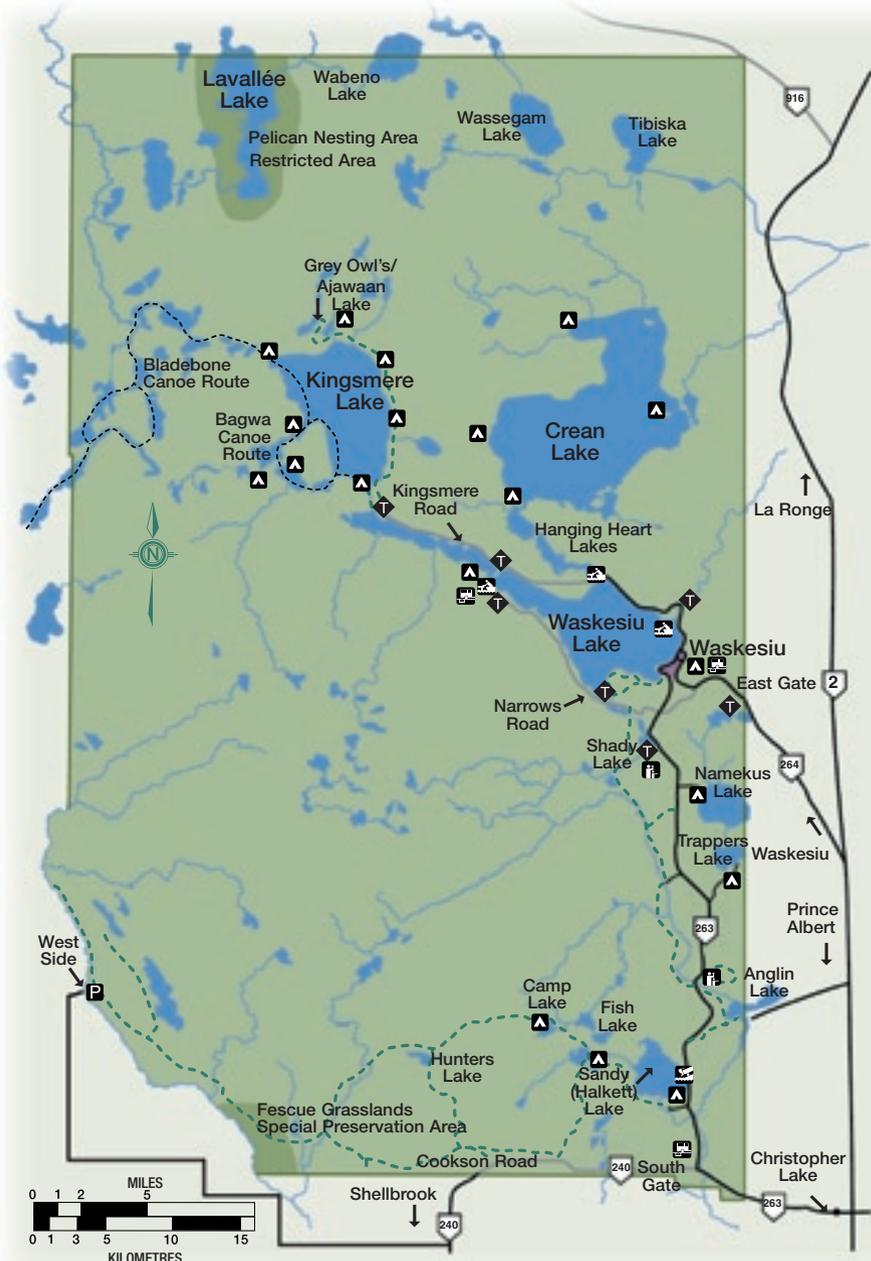

Winter Activities. Bring your skis; the classic and freestyle groomed trails are fantastic. Try snowshoeing, ice fishing or winter camping. Enjoy the tranquillity of the boreal forest.

Boat & Fishing. Powerboats are permitted on the larger lakes in the park with the smaller lakes used for canoes/kayaks and sailboats. Motor restrictions apply in some areas. Cast your line into cool northern waters for lake trout, northern pike and wall-eye. A national park fishing permit and regulations can be obtained at various locations. Marina facilities, services and watercraft rentals are available.

Interpretive Programs. To help visitors appreciate and understand this transitional ecosystem, a variety of interpretive activities are offered by park interpreters. Whatever your age or interest, you will find the interpretive events unique, educational and rewarding. GRASSLANDS NATIONAL PARK

Explore one of the last frontiers of the Canadian west and discover unique and endangered flora and fauna. This vast, open landscape represents some of the last original mixed-grass prairie. Palaeontological history is evident in the dinosaur remains of the Badlands. The Ice Age is evident in the plateaus and coulees along the Frenchman River Valley. Tipi rings and buffalo rubbing stones, weathered NWMP trails, and the seasoned ranch homesteads show the diverse history of the region. In fact, it was here Sitting Bull took refuge after the Battle of Little Big Horn. This is a magical land of diversity, beauty and history.

Divided into two blocks, the East Block, contains the Badlands and the Wood Mountain Uplands. The West Block presents the Frenchman River Valley and the dissected plateaus, coulees and famous 70 Mile Butte. The park provides visitors opportunities for camping, horse-back riding, hiking and nature viewing. When fully established, the park will encompass over 900 square kilometres.

Getting There

The park is located in southwestern Saskatchewan, near the Montana border, accessible by Highway 4 and Highway 18. The Visitor Centre is located in Val Marie, close to the West Block, and about 120 km south of Swift Current.

Making the Most of Your Visit

- Inquire at the Visitor Centre in Val Marie about park access, interpretive programs, and safety concerns. The centre is open daily, 8:00 to 5:00 p.m. for the summer (May long weekend to Labour Day), and from 8:00 to 4:30 p.m. weekdays (except holidays) for the rest of the year. The park itself is accessible year-round.
- Enjoy guided hikes with an interpreter or take a self-guided driving tour.
- Early and late summer are the best times to visit the park as temperatures can be very hot in summer. However, each season delivers a special experience.
- Many roads to the park are gravel or rough highway. Use caution as park roads are rough and can become impassable when wet. Inquire at the Visitor Centre about road conditions.

Activities

Walking and Hiking Enjoy the prairie on your own or with a guide. Park staff offer guided hikes daily in July and August or you can explore unmarked and marked hiking trails including the self-guided “Two Trees Trail.” As the park is not yet fully established, there are private lands located within the proposed boundary. Always seek permission before accessing private lands. However, there is ample park land available to acquire your ‘prairie’ experience. Contact the Visitor Centre for details.

Scenic Touring Scenic drives through the West Block can be enjoyed with the aid of brochures and audio cassettes. Stop at the Visitor Centre for the self-guided “Frenchman River Valley Ecotour” brochure to explore this scenic roadway.

Wildlife Watching Unique and endangered flora and fauna make their home within the park. Pronghorn antelope, sage grouse, burrowing owl, ferruginous hawk, prairie rattle snake and eastern short-horned lizard all reside in the park. This part of Canada is the only place that black-tailed prairie dog colonies can be viewed in their native habitat. Opportunities abound for bird watching and nature photography. Contact Visitor Centre staff about species and viewing guidelines.

- Travel with a full tank of gas as services are few and far between.
- Always carry water as no drinking water is available within the park.

Visit in Winter

The park can become inaccessible during poor weather. However, snowfall is typically minimal, so winter activities can include hiking and horseback riding, and occasionally cross-country skiing or snow-shoeing.

For Your Convenience

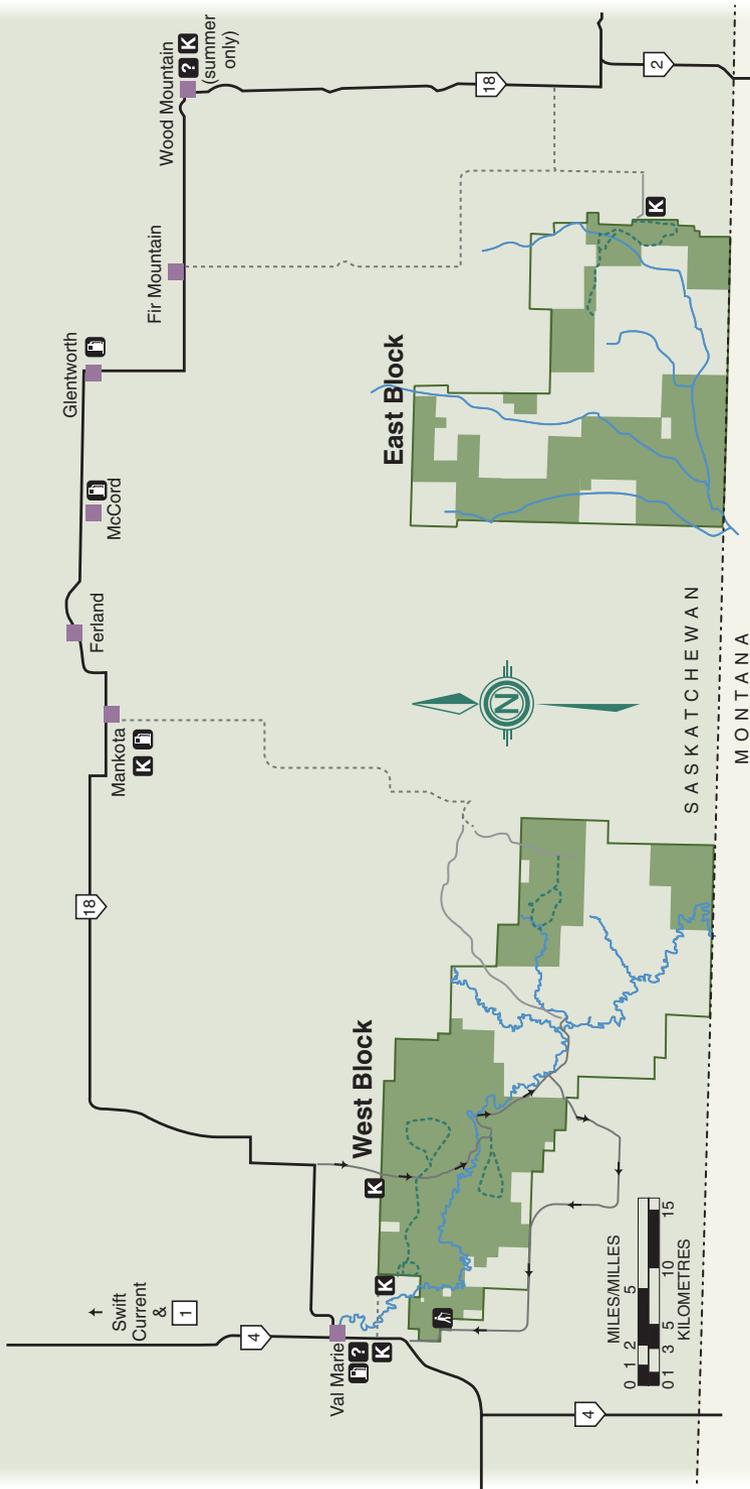

No facilities or services are located within the park. A select range of services are provided at nearby Val Marie, Mankota, McCord, Glentworth and Wood Mountain. Inquire at the Visitor Centre in Val Marie for information on local services or the park. There is also limited visitor information available at the Rodeo & Ranch Museum in the Wood Mountain Regional Park.

Horseback Riding One of the best ways you can explore the park is on horseback. Guided horseback rides and overnight pack trips are available with local outfitters, or you can bring your own horse. Contact the park for more information.

Camping Campers must register at the Visitor Centre (year-round) or the Rodeo Ranch Museum at Wood Mountain Regional Park (during summer). No open campfires are allowed. Primitive campers are encouraged to camp anywhere in the park but away from roads and old buildings. Vehicle campers can park at one of two old homesteads where a dry toilet is provided. No other services are provided. Serviced campgrounds can be found in the towns of Val Marie, Mankota and at Wood Mountain Regional Park.

OTHER NATIONAL HISTORIC SITES

Parks Canada administers another six national historic sites in Saskatchewan. These important places in the Canadian story are interpreted by plaques and signs on-site but do not offer personal programming. Once there, the natural settings inspire you to imagine the events at their height, making the trip well worth your while. Your imagination will be your guide as you stand in the spot where history was made.

Located near Batoche, The Battle of Fish Creek National Historic Site commemorates the site of this battle between Gabriel Dumont's Métis and First Nations forces and the Canadian militia in 1885. This event delayed the battle at Batoche. The site has no facilities or services and is located about 15 minutes from Batoche National Historic Site.

Located near Frenchman Butte, Frenchman Butte National Historic Site is the site of the 1885 battle between Wandering Spirit's Cree warriors and General Strange's Canadian troops.

Privies and a picnic area are available at the site. Contact Fort Battleford National Historic Site for more information.

The following three sites are administered by Motherwell Homestead National Historic Site.

Located near Rocanville, Fort Espérance National Historic Site contains the remains of two North West Company fur trade posts from the late 18th century. The site offers picnic facilities and privies.

Fort Livingstone National Historic Site, in east central Saskatchewan, is the site of the original headquarters of the NWMP and the first capital of the Northwest Territories from 1876–1877. The site does not have any facilities or services.

Fort Pelly National Historic Site contains the remains of a Hudson's Bay Company fur trade post with interpretive panels to tell the story of the post. The site does not have any facilities or services. These two last sites are located near Pelly.

The services and facilities at each of these sites vary from basic privies and picnic areas to a plaque in a spot of historic significance. Access to certain sites is often via dirt roads or poor secondary roads. Be sure to take your own drinking water and wear proper footwear to manoeuvre terrains that receive various levels of maintenance. Road conditions and detailed directions can be obtained by contacting the operational office which administers the site.

THE FAMILY OF NATIONAL HISTORIC SITES

The Government of Canada commemorates persons, events and places associated with our national heritage. Together, these form a Canada-wide family of special places that celebrate the stories of our land, the stories of our people. In Saskatchewan, there are many national historic sites not administered by Parks Canada that would be great stops on any vacation. The following are just a few examples.

Seager Wheeler's Maple Grove Farm National Historic Site

Established in 1898 by Seager Wheeler, Maple Grove Farm illustrates the realities of prairie agriculture and the evolution of the industry. Persevering through the dust of the Dirty Thirties,

Seager Wheeler Farm Historical Society

Seager Wheeler successfully demonstrated that by using selective breeding and soil conservation techniques agriculture could work on the prairies. Crowned World Wheat King five times between 1911 and 1918, Seager Wheeler had a tremendous impact on the development of western agriculture and the marketability of the west.

Walk around the farmstead and explore an orchard, extensive flower gardens, shelter belts, remnants of Wheeler's seed plots and many original buildings. Visit the century-old interpretive centre and enjoy a light lunch in the tea room. The site is owned and operated by the Seager Wheeler Farm Historical Society and is located 7 km east of Rosthern on Highway #312 near Batoche National Historic Site. For more information contact Seager Wheeler Farm Historical Society, Box 476, Rosthern SK, S0K 3R0, (306) 232-5959.

Claybank Brick Plant National Historic Site

Nestled in the Dirt Hills, Claybank Brick Plant utilized the natural resources of the region to manufacture clay into brick for three quarters of a century. A national and international supplier of brick, the plant produced the unique T-P Moka face brick that was used in structures all across the prairies and landmarks such as Quebec City’s Chateau Frontenac. Firebrick, which lined the fireboxes of CN and CP Rail line locomotives and Corvette warships in WW II, was also produced here.

Largely industrial in character, this site offers impressive architecture and social history. Wander through the surrounding hills to explore the clay pits or tour this remarkable industrial complex that still houses much of the original equipment and buildings from 1912 to 1937. Located on Highway #339, Claybank

Brick Plant NHS is only an hour from Regina or 45 minutes from Moose Jaw. For more information contact the Claybank Brick Plant Historical Society, Box 4, Briercrest, SK, S0H 0K0, (306) 768-4774.

Other national historic sites include Wanuskewin Heritage Park and the Forestry Farm Park and Zoo in Saskatoon, Holy Trinity Church (Stanley Mission) in LaRonge and Government House in Regina.
