I have obtained most of the images used in this document from collectors and dealers, notably Earle Covert of Raymond, Alberta; Shaun Harvey, Auction Works Inc. of Lethbridge, Alberta; Ron McGuire of Ottawa, Ontario; Ken Orich of Lethbridge, Alberta; Mike Street of Ancaster, Ontario; and Ed Zaluski of Ottawa, Ontario. Additional images of National Parks motoring and roads are copied from postings on various web sites during the 2011 to 2015 period. Several images are drawn from the on-line chauffeur badges collection created by Dr. Edward Miles of New York, New York (www.chauffeurbadges.com). I am not a collector of these items and should not be considered any sort of expert. Any errors are entirely my own.

Canada's National Park Motor Vehicle Licences, 1923 to 2015

New Information in Version 3 (August 2015)

- The title of this publication has been shortened. It now covers Canadian National Park motor licences through to 2015.
- Significant additions and revisions are added throughout the document.
- Additional sources of information are added in the References section.

Introduction

Banff National Park, Canada's first National Park, was created in 1885 before the introduction of automobiles but cars soon appeared on the scene. Since 1923, Canada's National Parks have used documents and objects to indicate payment of fees for the use of a motor vehicle in the parks. These items have variously been called a "national parks pass", "parks automobile licence", "national parks motor vehicle stamp", "vehicle permit" and other names. All of these items are revenue items but only some of them might be considered "revenue stamps". Regardless, the fees are one of the sources of revenue that assist the Canadian Parks Service (also called "Parks Canada") in its conservation and sustainable use mission. The designs of these licences have included wildlife — in particular buffalo, elk, moose and beaver — in many of the past 93 years; images of particular parks; and simple text.

There is very little literature published about Canada's National Parks Motor Vehicle Licences. One exception is a series of philatelic articles by Richardson (1968) alerting stamp collectors to the adhesive window decals that served as a form of federal revenue stamp in the 1960s. An initial listing of these licences with a few illustrations is also included in the book The Hunting, Fishing and Conservation Stamps of Canada (Rubec 2011). However, I felt it would be interesting to document and create a larger digital image collection representing more of this material. If you are able to add to this document or correct errors, please feel free to contact me (rubec@rogers.com)

Six basic styles of Canadian National Parks licences are known to me, as discussed below. Metal plate toppers and radiator badges ceased to be manufactured in 1940 with the introduction of metal rationing and recycling during the war years. The styles include:

- Paper or Card Licences: Seen in 1923 (Section A) and from 1941 into the 1990s (Section D).
- Metal Licence Plate Toppers made of brass, copper or aluminum from 1924 or 1925 to 1940. They were attached to the front licence plate. They could also be attached to the front radiator of the vehicle. These depict a left-facing buffalo (Section B).
- Metal Radiator Badges may also have served as a national parks licence. They were attached to the front of the radiator on a vehicle. Badges seen include 1938 to 1940 National Parks examples (Section C) that are circular showing a beaver facing right (made of copper, about 13 cm tall). Metal National Parks Chauffeur badges and pins are also known from 1921 to 1958 (none are shown here; see Miles 2013). Also seen are 1933 to 1935 badges from Saskatchewan Provincial Parks that feature a left-facing beaver (made of aluminum) and a moose (Section F).
- Self-adhesive Decals on removable backings from 1941 to 1994 to be attached to the inside surface of an automobile front windshield. Also known are National Parks separate, self-adhesive window decals for camping trailers (Section D).
- Rearview Mirror Shields made of heavy plastic from 1995 to 2015 to be hung from the rearview mirror on the inside of the front window of an automobile (Section E).
- Paper Receipts generated by various methods (Section D).

Tables A to E outline five groups of these licences during the 1923 to 2015 period. It is not known if examples exist prior to 1923. The tables include items from the following years: 1923, 1925–1940, 1942, 1946, 1948–1954, 1956, 1958–1960, 1962–1976, 1978–1996, 1998–2002, and 2004–2015. I have not yet seen any national park licences for the 12 years not in this list. These groupings may need to be adjusted when more material is available. Eighty-one years are now represented in this digital image collection covering the 93 years from 1923 to 2015. Some years have examples of more than one style. The five tables of licences are:

- Table A: Early National Parks paper documents 1923;
- Table B: National Parks metal licence plate toppers/radiator badges 1924 to 1940 showing bison;
- Table C: Other National Parks metal radiator badges 1924 to 1940 showing beaver;
- Table D: National Parks Peel-off self-adhesive windshield decals and paper receipts 1939 to 1994; and
- Table E: National Parks Plastic rearview mirror shield hangers and paper receipts 1995 to 2015.
- “A Few Other Items” are also given in Table F.

A free Banff and Kootenay National Parks Seven-Day Pass for June 29-July 7, 1923 was issued marking the opening of the Banff-Windemere Highway on June 30, 1923 in British Columbia. This sticker is 228 mm (9 inches) wide, with black type on white paper on the back and shaped like a car of the era. The front side has the car in blue, white and yellow. A 2nd version noted has the June 30 date crossed out and July 1 stamped in blue above.

1923 Single-trip Canada National Parks Motor Vehicle Licence for Elk Island, Prince Albert, Riding Mountain, Waterton Lakes and Point Pelee National Parks. It is 76 mm (3 inches) wide with a 25-cent fee indicated. This licence is printed on heavy card, with black type on grey-green paper.
