

The Trapper

Moose Factory Photographs

By
BASSETT
Associated Screen News

Boats at Moose Factory are drawn clear of the river each winter. The M.S. "Fort Churchill" distributes supplies to the southern Hudson Bay and James Bay posts.

Old cannon which stand by the flag-pole and roar out welcomes to distinguished visitors. In the rear is the Staff House, home of Moose Factory's young fur traders.

The Moose Factory Fuel Supply Company and Waterworks—a busy concern when the cold winds blow down the Bay.

The Company buildings on the banks of the Moose River. Established 1671, it is the Company's second oldest post.

The end of a journey, and the dogs lie down in the snow.

The Anglican Church at Moose Factory, originally Pro-Cathedral of the Diocese of Moosonee.

In the old days English and French fought at Moose; today the only battles are dog fights.

The water front at Moose Factory. In the lower right corner is the Forge, the oldest building in Ontario.

Indian children of Moose passing the post buildings on their way home from Church on Sunday morning.

Snow flurries and a biting wind at the end of a day. Hayes Island in the rear is the site of the first post.

The Accountant, C. D. Twiner

The Post Manager, N. A. Wilding

The Oldest Couple, Mr. and Mrs. Smallboy

The Housekeeper, Miss H. Dawe

The Policemen, Const. L. W. Hopkins and Corpl. E. S. Covell

The Accountant's Family, Mrs. Twiner and Joie

The Parson, Rev. G. Thompson

The Indian Agent's Daughter, Catherine Tyrer

The Fur Traders: R. Thompson, T. W. Babbage, W. H. Houston, N. A. Wilding